

Jocelyn Carter-Miller is President of TechEdVentures and SoulTranSync, which specialize in the development and marketing of high performance educational and self-empowerment programming.

Previously, Jocelyn was Executive Vice President and Chief Marketing Officer for Office Depot, Inc., where she managed marketing efforts across its retail, contract, catalog and e-commerce businesses. Formerly, Jocelyn served as Motorola Corporate Vice President and Chief Marketing Officer; Vice President of Latin American and Caribbean Operations, and Director of European, Middle East and African Operations for the Motorola International Networks Division; developing new technology markets while driving significantly increased sales and profits across divisions. Before joining Motorola, Jocelyn was Vice President of Marketing and Product Development for Mattel, where she achieved record sales and profits for Barbie.

Jocelyn co-authored Networking: Building Relationships and Opportunities for Success, published by Jossey-Bass Publishers. She frequently speaks at business, women and community forums including her recent presentations at the NACD on Building the 21st Century Corporate Board and Board Succession, the Women's Empowerment Summit on Board Games and the Women's Leadership Forum on ZigZagging: Why the Shortest Path to Career Success is Not Always a Straight Line.

Jocelyn has an MBA from the University of Chicago, a BS in Accounting and is a CPA. She serves on the boards of Principal Financial Group, Inc. (Finance Committee Chair, Nominating and Governance Committee Member), InterPublic Group (Nominating and Governance Committee Chair, Audit Committee Member), Netgear, Inc. (Audit Committee Member, Compensation Committee Member), and the non-profit League of Women Voters of Broward County (President). In recognition of her influential leadership in corporate governance, Jocelyn was selected as a 2013 NACD Directorship 100 Honoree and Savoy's Most Influential African –American Directors in 2016.

She is married to Edward Miller and has two adult daughters, Alexis and Kimberly.